

ONLINE COMMUNICATION IS STRIKINGLY DIFFERENT THAN ANY OTHER MEDIUM.

Wallop is a creative studio specializing in online communication. We are idea people with follow-through.

We do a lot of thinking before entering the production phase of our projects. We think about you, your organization, your industry, and your goals.

Yes, it sounds simple, but we'd like to stress that we think first.

Today's web experience has boundaries that will be removed through creative thinking. We invite you to push these boundaries with us.

HOW WE WORK WITH YOU

If you were to tell us you needed a website, we'd ask you why? Not, how many pages? or, what color would you like it?

Too many companies build their websites in a bubble. When planning a web strategy, they are not taking into consideration how to leverage their online with their offline presence (and vice versa) in order to produce a true return on investment.

Our design services include a detailed process that puts as much focus on consultation as it does production. We offer this due diligence because we believe that today's web, being the most advanced communication medium available, warrants it.

We begin each project by researching you. By learning your history, direction and goals, we've gained the background necessary to delve into a robust brainstorming session. The results of this idea generation are concepts and unique solutions that work.

At this point we are halfway through your project. Strangely enough, most design firms jump right into production, thinking that it is OK to skip the research, goal definition, and conceptual development that we value.

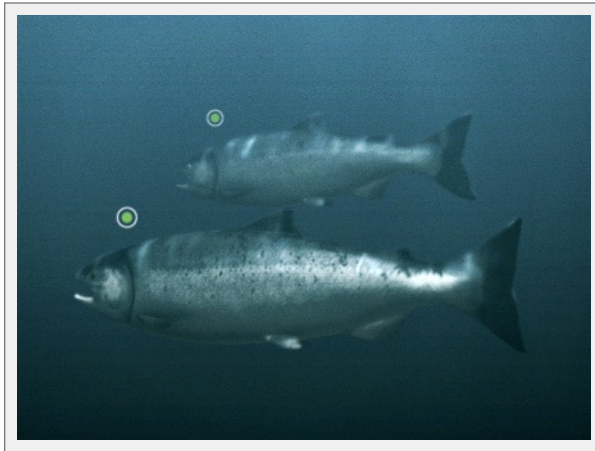

Our web solutions are derived from our consultation services. To see the results (our productions), please visit our website. www.wallopcreative.com
